It's STILL showing the way!

Beneath Lincoln-Zephyr's style-setting lines
... there's still only one Lincoln-Zephyr!

IN the things that really count, the 1939 Lincoln-Zephyr stands just as far ahead of its times as the first Lincoln-Zephyr did! It's still the only "12" at or near its price. It is still the only car in the world with modern bridge-truss body structure. Still the only car ever built that so ideally combines true bigness, true comfort, and true ease of handling. In its own particular kind of value, Lincoln-Zephyr still shows the way to a world that already acknowledges its leadership in style. Drive it yourself, today . . . and meet the most modern car on the road!

Lincoln-Zephyr Features:

110 horsepower V-12 engine thrifty as no "12" has ever been . . . 125-inch wheelbase, 136-inch springbase . . . new hydraulic brakes . . . advanced styling . . . new riding quiet . . . rich interiors of exceptional roominess . . . choice of 6 body types, including 2 convertibles.

$1386⁰⁰ DELIVERED IN DETROIT
for the Sedan illustrated, white side-wall tires included — State and Federal taxes extra.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

ENCORE

This week concludes the 58th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky's conductorship the fifteenth. The orchestra is in a Great Age. No finer musical instrument exists, and its conductor ranks among the four most eminent living. Of the other three, one is aging, another does not confine his activities entirely to conducting, and the third comes not our way. Thus we have, to help sustain the repute of Boston as a cultural capital, a virtuoso orchestra led by a virtuoso conductor. To take for granted the presence of such an institution and the labors of artists so devoted, to let them lavish the riches of their art without voicing that minimum of gratitude which can be worded, would be bad manners and worse husbandry.

* * *

Today we are in an era of virtuoso conductors. The mainstream of great composers appears to have slackened. Music may be husbanding its forces for a new Spring, or it may be a discordant wind sighing the Autumn of a civilization. In America, however, performances of the classic repertory of music are as though the dramas of the Elizabethans and the Attic tragedians could be heard almost daily. Fifty years ago we had but one or two resident orchestras; today we have one good resident opera company. Will radio decimate our resident orchestras as the film has disbanded resident theatrical companies? Or will it help multiply civic opera companies as it seems to have promoted the formation of civic orchestras?

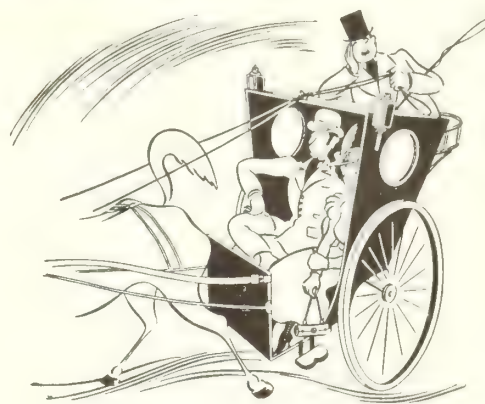

Speaking to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences last September Dr. Koussevitzky said, "Berlioz, Mendelssohn, and Wagner, who appeared about the same time as the leading conductors of their epoch, were, indeed, the first conductor-interpreters. In fact, they founded a new school." Koussevitzky himself has advanced this art. His growth can be observed from season to season, almost from month to month. It is never safe to suppose that you know how he will play a given work, no matter how often he has played it before, or though its score may be as familiar to you as a hymn tune. With him each performance is a tour of once-familiar country but by new routes, an ascent of an oft-climbed Alp but to ever higher summits. Continually in the depths of his consciousness music

doth suffer a sea-change

Into something rich and strange.

In a city which he honors and in a country which he loves, he labors unceasingly for the greater glory of a noble art.

UNCLE DUDLEY.

BOSTON

ORIGIN OF THE POPS

The Pops owe their origin, more than a half century ago, to an attempt at the end of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth season to establish something on a European model—concerts where the beer garden and the concert hall were combined. They were compared in the newspapers to the "Concert Gardens" which Theodore Thomas had made popular in New York's summer season. Boston's concerts were officially labelled the "Promenade" concerts, but they were popularly called the "Pops" from the very first. The title "Pops" was formally adopted in 1900 when, moving to Mechanics Hall for a season pending the completion of the then new Symphony Hall, they moved uptown from the old Music Hall where, like the winter concerts, they had always been given "Promenades" or "Pops," their hold upon the public fancy has persisted through all the intervening years. Strange to say, they have never been successfully imitated in any other American city.

It is said that glasses of beer stood on every table at the Pops of the eighties, and that the exuberance of conversation was scarcely abated while the waltzes, gallops, or marches then in vogue, were being played. There has been considerable variation in the points stressed from epoch to epoch, and under one conductor or another, such as Franz Kneisel, Timothée Adamowski, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella. When prohibition came, there was naturally more serious attention to the programme side.

Arthur Fiedler is now entering his tenth season—a record length for a Pops conductorship. Through his decade, the Pops have grown in range of programme and appeal. The extent of the public each season leaves all precedent behind.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

ENCORE

This week concludes the 58th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky's conductorship the fifteenth. The orchestra is in a Great Age. No finer musical instrument exists, and its conductor ranks among the four most eminent living. Of the other three, one is aging, another does not confine his activities entirely to conducting, and the third comes not our way. Thus we have, to help sustain the repute of Boston as a cultural capital, a virtuoso orchestra led by a virtuoso conductor. To take for granted the presence of such an institution and the labors of artists so devoted, to let them lavish the riches of their art without voicing that minimum of gratitude which can be worded, would be bad manners and worse husbandry.

* * *

Today we are in an era of virtuoso conductors. The mainstream of great composers appears to have slackened. Music may be husbanding its forces for a new Spring, or it may be a discordant wind sighing the Autumn of a civilization. In America, however, performances of the classic repertory of music are as though the dramas of the Elizabethans and the Attic tragedians could be heard almost daily. Fifty years ago we had but one or two resident orchestras; today we have one good resident opera company. Will radio decimate our resident orchestras as the film has disbanded resident theatrical companies? Or will it help multiply civic opera companies as it seems to have promoted the formation of civic orchestras?

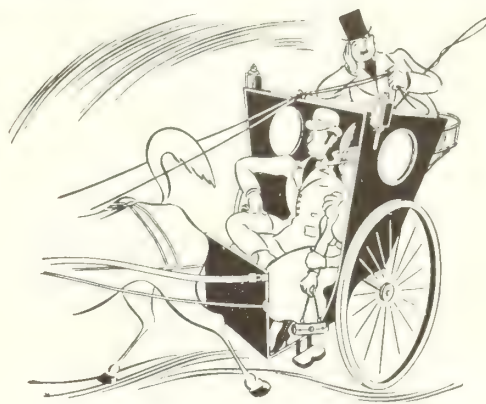

Speaking to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences last September Dr. Koussevitzky said, "Berlioz, Mendelssohn, and Wagner, who appeared about the same time as the leading conductors of their epoch, were, indeed, the first conductor-interpreters. In fact, they founded a new school." Koussevitzky himself has advanced this art. His growth can be observed from season to season, almost from month to month. It is never safe to suppose that you know how he will play a given work, no matter how often he has played it before, or though its score may be as familiar to you as a hymn tune. With him each performance is a tour of once-familiar country but by new routes, an ascent of an oft-climbed Alp but to ever higher summits. Continually in the depths of his consciousness music

Into something rich and strange.

In a city which he honors and in a country which he loves, he labors unceasingly for the greater glory of a noble art.

ORIGIN OF THE POPS

The Pops owe their origin, more than a half century ago, to an attempt at the end of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth season to establish something on a European model — concerts where the beer garden and the concert hall were combined. They were compared in the newspapers to the "Concert Gardens" which Theodore Thomas had made popular in New York's summer season. Boston's concerts were officially labelled the "Promenade" concerts, but they were popularly called the "Pops" from the very first. The title "Pops" was formally adopted in 1900 when, moving to Mechanics Hall for a season pending the completion of the then new Symphony Hall, they moved uptown from the old Music Hall where, like the winter concerts, they had always been given "Promenades" or "Pops," their hold upon the public fancy has persisted through all the intervening years. Strange to say, they have never been successfully imitated in any other American city.

It is said that glasses of beer stood on every table at the Pops of the eighties, and that the exuberance of conversation was scarcely abated while the waltzes, gallops, or marches then in vogue, were being played. There has been considerable variation in the points stressed from epoch to epoch, and under one conductor or another, such as Franz Kneisel, Timothée Adamowski, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella. When prohibition came, there was naturally more serious attention to the programme side.

Arthur Fiedler is now entering his tenth season — a record length for a Pops conductorship. Through his decade, the Pops have grown in range of programme and appeal. The extent of the public each season leaves all precedent behind.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

ENCORE

This week concludes the 58th season of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky's conductorship the fifteenth. The orchestra is in a Great Age. No finer musical instrument exists, and its conductor ranks among the four most eminent living. Of the other three, one is aging, another does not confine his activities entirely to conducting, and the third comes not our way. Thus we have, to help sustain the repute of Boston as a cultural capital, a virtuoso orchestra led by a virtuoso conductor. To take for granted the presence of such an institution and the labors of artists so devoted, to let them lavish the riches of their art without voicing that minimum of gratitude which can be worded, would be bad manners and worse husbandry.

* * *

Today we are in an era of virtuoso conductors. The mainstream of great composers appears to have slackened. Music may be husbanding its forces for a new Spring, or it may be a discordant wind sighing the Autumn of a civilization. In America, however, performances of the classic repertory of music are as though the dramas of the Elizabethans and the Attic tragedians could be heard almost daily. Fifty years ago we had but one or two resident orchestras; today we have one good resident opera company. Will radio decimate our resident orchestras as the film has disbanded resident theatrical companies? Or will it help multiply civic opera companies as it seems to have promoted the formation of civic orchestras?

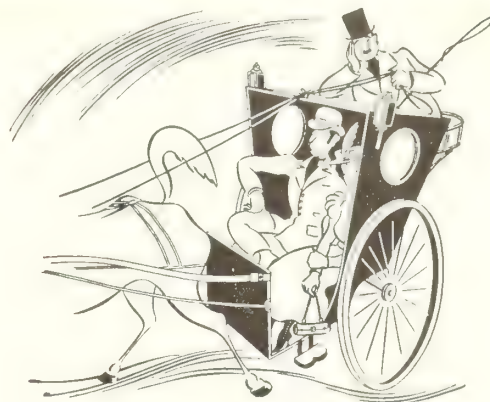

Speaking to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences last September Dr. Koussevitzky said, "Berlioz, Mendelssohn, and Wagner, who appeared about the same time as the leading conductors of their epoch, were, indeed, the first conductor-interpreters. In fact, they founded a new school." Koussevitzky himself has advanced this art. His growth can be observed from season to season, almost from month to month. It is never safe to suppose that you know how he will play a given work, no matter how often he has played it before, or though its score may be as familiar to you as a hymn tune. With him each performance is a tour of once-familiar country but by new routes, an ascent of an oft-climbed Alp but to ever higher summits. Continually in the depths of his consciousness music

Into something rich and strange.

In a city which he honors and in a country which he loves, he labors unceasingly for the greater glory of a noble art.

Arthur Fiedler opens his Tenth Season as Pops Leader

(Boston Globe, May 4, 1939)

If anything will drive away the cold weather, it is the coming of Pops. Boston's unique musical entertainment has long signified the arrival of May and its theoretically attendant warmth. The 54th season of these enjoyable concerts and informal surroundings began at Symphony Hall last night. Arthur Fiedler, embarking upon his 10th season as conductor, led an orchestra of about 90 Boston Symphony men through a program varied with new music and old Pops favorites.

Symphony Hall again is blooming in its green-and-gold decorations of Spring, the big chandelier suspended over the orchestra and soft gray curtains breaking the severity of the proscenium arch at the sides of the stage.

What appeared to be a capacity audience filled the hall. Once more the popping of corks and the clinking of glasses was to be heard at the tables on the floor, as the staff of waitresses was kept busily engaged in bringing refreshments offered by the generously stocked Pops list. And not long after the concert had begun, those sitting at the tables had created a friendly haze of tobacco smoke.

If inveterate attendants were to analyze why they enjoy the Pops so much, they would probably arrive at the conclusion it is because the Pops change and are yet always the same. The programs do change, with new music and old assembled to fit the mood of passing time. But the essential atmosphere of the Pops, their easy informality and discreet gayety are important reasons why these concerts have for years been so much in favor. These things, praise be! do not change.

During Mr. Fiedler's regime of nearly a decade—which has seen the passing of the sternly non-alcoholic men and the return of wines and beers—the Pops have reached successive peaks of popularity. As a maker of programs, Mr. Fiedler has been particularly astute; he has managed that miraculous feat of pleasing all sections of the Pops public, from those who are partial to music of the past, to the younger segment who like a bit of swing mixed with light classics. As conductor, Mr. Fiedler has continued to grow, both in technic and—where more exacting music is concerned—as interpreter. The Pops were originally designed to be entertaining; under Mr. Fiedler they have always been so.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

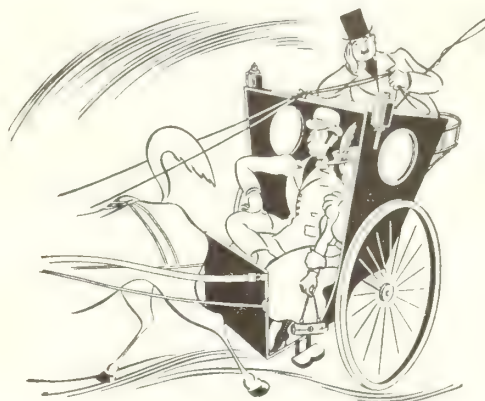

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

Arthur Fiedler opens his Tenth Season as Pops Leader

(Boston Globe, May 4, 1939)

If anything will drive away the cold weather, it is the coming of Pops. Boston's unique musical entertainment has long signified the arrival of May and its theoretically attendant warmth. The 54th season of these enjoyable concerts and informal surroundings began at Symphony Hall last night. Arthur Fiedler, embarking upon his 10th season as conductor, led an orchestra of about 90 Boston Symphony men through a program varied with new music and old Pops favorites.

Symphony Hall again is blooming in its green-and-gold decorations of Spring, the big chandelier suspended over the orchestra and soft gray curtains breaking the severity of the proscenium arch at the sides of the stage.

What appeared to be a capacity audience filled the hall. Once more the popping of corks and the clinking of glasses was to be heard at the tables on the floor, as the staff of waitresses was kept busily engaged in bringing refreshments offered by the generously stocked Pops list. And not long after the concert had begun, those sitting at the tables had created a friendly haze of tobacco smoke.

If inveterate attendants were to analyze why they enjoy the Pops so much, they would probably arrive at the conclusion it is because the Pops change and are yet always the same. The programs do change, with new music and old assembled to fit the mood of passing time. But the essential atmosphere of the Pops, their easy informality and discreet gayety are important reasons why these concerts have for years been so much in favor. These things, praise be! do not change.

During Mr. Fiedler's regime of nearly a decade—which has seen the passing of the sternly non-alcoholic menu and the return of wines and beers—the Pops have reached successive peaks of popularity. As a maker of programs, Mr. Fiedler has been particularly astute; he has managed that miraculous feat of pleasing all sections of the Pops public, from those who are partial to music of the past, to the younger segment who like a bit of swing mixed with light classics. As conductor, Mr. Fiedler has continued to grow, both in technic and—where more exacting music is concerned—as interpreter. The Pops were originally designed to be entertaining; under Mr. Fiedler they have always been so.

It's STILL showing the way!

Beneath Lincoln-Zephyr's style-setting lines
... there's still only one Lincoln-Zephyr!

IN the things that really count, the 1939 Lincoln-Zephyr stands just as far ahead of its times as the first Lincoln-Zephyr did! It's still the only "12" at or near its price. It is still the only car in the world with modern bridge-truss body structure. Still the only car ever built that so ideally combines true bigness, true comfort, and true ease of handling. In its own particular kind of value, Lincoln-Zephyr still shows the way to a world that already acknowledges its leadership in style. Drive it yourself, today . . . and meet the most modern car on the road!

Lincoln-Zephyr Features:

110 horsepower V-12 engine thrifty as no "12" has ever been . . . 125-inch wheelbase, 136-inch springbase . . . new hydraulic brakes . . . advanced styling . . . new riding quiet . . . rich interiors of exceptional roominess . . . choice of 6 body types, including 2 convertibles.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

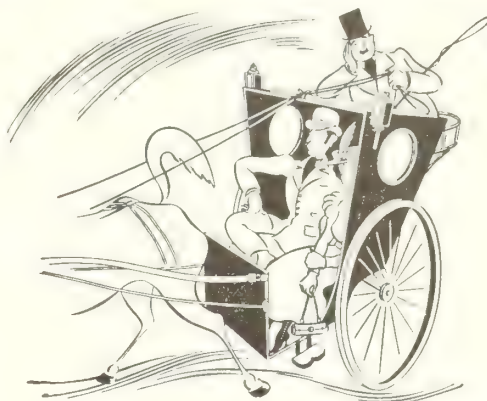

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

Arthur Fiedler opens his Tenth Season as Pops Leader

(Boston Globe, May 4, 1939)

If anything will drive away the cold weather, it is the coming of Pops. Boston's unique musical entertainment has long signified the arrival of May and its theoretically attendant warmth. The 54th season of these enjoyable concerts and informal surroundings began at Symphony Hall last night. Arthur Fiedler, embarking upon his 10th season as conductor, led an orchestra of about 90 Boston Symphony men through a program varied with new music and old Pops favorites.

Symphony Hall again is blooming in its green-and-gold decorations of Spring, the big chandelier suspended over the orchestra and soft gray curtains breaking the severity of the proscenium arch at the sides of the stage.

What appeared to be a capacity audience filled the hall. Once more the popping of corks and the clinking of glasses was to be heard at the tables on the floor, as the staff of waitresses was kept busily engaged in bringing refreshments offered by the generously stocked Pops list. And not long after the concert had begun, those sitting at the tables had created a friendly haze of tobacco smoke.

If inveterate attendants were to analyze why they enjoy the Pops so much, they would probably arrive at the conclusion it is because the Pops change and are yet always the same. The programs do change, with new music and old assembled to fit the mood of passing time. But the essential atmosphere of the Pops, their easy informality and discreet gayety are important reasons why these concerts have for years been so much in favor. These things, praise be! do not change.

During Mr. Fiedler's regime of nearly a decade—which has seen the passing of the sternly non-alcoholic menu and the return of wines and beers—the Pops have reached successive peaks of popularity. As a maker of programs, Mr. Fiedler has been particularly astute; he has managed that miraculous feat of pleasing all sections of the Pops public, from those who are partial to music of the past, to the younger segment who like a bit of swing mixed with light classics. As conductor, Mr. Fiedler has continued to grow, both in technic and—where more exacting music is concerned—as interpreter. The Pops were originally designed to be entertaining; under Mr. Fiedler they have always been so.

It's STILL showing the way!

Beneath Lincoln-Zephyr's style-setting lines
. . . there's still only one Lincoln-Zephyr!

IN the things that really count, the 1939 Lincoln-Zephyr stands just as far ahead of its times as the first Lincoln-Zephyr did! It's still the only "12" at or near its price. It is still the only car in the world with modern bridge-truss body structure. Still the only car ever built that so ideally combines true bigness, true comfort, and true ease of handling. In its own particular kind of value, Lincoln-Zephyr still shows the way to a world that already acknowledges its leadership in style. Drive it yourself, today . . . and meet the most modern car on the road!

Lincoln-Zephyr Features:

110 horsepower V-12 engine thrifty as no "12" has ever been . . . 125-inch wheelbase, 136-inch springbase . . . new hydraulic brakes . . . advanced styling . . . new riding quiet . . . rich interiors of exceptional roominess . . . choice of 6 body types, including 2 convertibles.

$1386⁰⁰ DELIVERED IN DETROIT
for the Sedan illustrated, white side-wall tires included—State and Federal taxes extra.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

Arthur Fiedler opens his Tenth Season as Pops Leader

(Boston Globe, May 4, 1939)

If anything will drive away the cold weather, it is the coming of Pops. Boston's unique musical entertainment has long signified the arrival of May and its theoretically attendant warmth. The 54th season of these enjoyable concerts and informal surroundings began at Symphony Hall last night. Arthur Fiedler, embarking upon his 10th season as conductor, led an orchestra of about 90 Boston Symphony men through a program varied with new music and old Pops favorites.

Symphony Hall again is blooming in its green-and-gold decorations of Spring, the big chandelier suspended over the orchestra and soft gray curtains breaking the severity of the proscenium arch at the sides of the stage.

What appeared to be a capacity audience filled the hall. Once more the popping of corks and the clinking of glasses was to be heard at the tables on the floor, as the staff of waitresses was kept busily engaged in bringing refreshments offered by the generously stocked Pops list. And not long after the concert had begun, those sitting at the tables had created a friendly haze of tobacco smoke.

If inveterate attendants were to analyze why they enjoy the Pops so much, they would probably arrive at the conclusion it is because the Pops change and are yet always the same. The programs do change, with new music and old assembled to fit the mood of passing time. But the essential atmosphere of the Pops, their easy informality and discreet gayety are important reasons why these concerts have for years been so much in favor. These things, praise be! do not change.

During Mr. Fiedler's regime of nearly a decade—which has seen the passing of the sternly non-alcoholic menu and the return of wines and beers—the Pops have reached successive peaks of popularity. As a maker of programs, Mr. Fiedler has been particularly astute; he has managed that miraculous feat of pleasing all sections of the Pops public, from those who are partial to music of the past, to the younger segment who like a bit of swing mixed with light classics. As conductor, Mr. Fiedler has continued to grow, both in technic and—where more exacting music is concerned—as interpreter. The Pops were originally designed to be entertaining; under Mr. Fiedler they have always been so.

It's STILL showing the way!

Beneath Lincoln-Zephyr's style-setting lines
... there's still only one Lincoln-Zephyr!

IN the things that really count, the 1939 Lincoln-Zephyr stands just as far ahead of its times as the first Lincoln-Zephyr did! It's still the only "12" at or near its price. It is still the only car in the world with modern bridge-truss body structure. Still the only car ever built that so ideally combines true bigness, true comfort, and true ease of handling. In its own particular kind of value, Lincoln-Zephyr still shows the way to a world that already acknowledges its leadership in style. Drive it yourself, today . . . and meet the most modern car on the road!

Lincoln-Zephyr Features:

110 horsepower V-12 engine thrifty as no "12" has ever been . . . 125-inch wheelbase, 136-inch springbase . . . new hydraulic brakes . . . advanced styling . . . new riding quiet . . . rich interiors of exceptional roominess . . . choice of 6 body types, including 2 convertibles.

$1386⁰⁰ DELIVERED IN DETROIT
for the Sedan illustrated, white side-wall tires included — State and Federal taxes extra.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

Selma Kramer in Pops Début Sunday

Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto in C minor will have an illustrious exponent in Selma Kramer, the young Russian artist who is to make her first Boston appearance when she plays at the Pop concert next Sunday evening.

Selma Kramer was born in Hamburg, Germany, of Russian parents, and studied there with Hans Hermanns. She began her career as concert artist at the age of fifteen, playing with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, and giving recitals in central Europe. Miss Kramer came to this country in 1935, making her début in Town Hall, New York, on November 6. The New York Herald Tribune then described her playing:

"A striking pianistic talent was disclosed by Selma Kramer, who made her début in Town Hall last night. Miss Kramer is a player endowed with a fiery temperament and the general style of her playing is not a little like that of Elly Ney when she first was heard here. . . . Her approach to her instrument is masculine in many respects. Her conceptions are broadly conceived, wholly free from sentimentality, and set forth with unflagging zeal. . . . The performance was an exhilarating one."

It's STILL showing the way!

Beneath Lincoln-Zephyr's style-setting lines
. . . there's still only one Lincoln-Zephyr!

IN the things that really count, the 1939 Lincoln-Zephyr stands just as far ahead of its times as the first Lincoln-Zephyr did! It's still the only "12" at or near its price. It is still the only car in the world with modern bridge-truss body structure. Still the only car ever built that so ideally combines true bigness, true comfort, and true ease of handling. In its own particular kind of value, Lincoln-Zephyr still shows the way to a world that already acknowledges its leadership in style. Drive it yourself, today . . . and meet the most modern car on the road!

Lincoln-Zephyr Features:

110 horsepower V-12 engine thrifty as no "12" has ever been . . . 125-inch wheelbase, 136-inch springbase . . . new hydraulic brakes . . . advanced styling . . . new riding quiet . . . rich interiors of exceptional roominess . . . choice of 6 body types, including 2 convertibles.

$1386⁰⁰ DELIVERED IN DETROIT
for the Sedan illustrated, white side-wall tires included — State and Federal taxes extra.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

Selma Kramer in Pops Début Sunday

Rachmaninoff's Second Piano Concerto in C minor will have an illustrious exponent in Selma Kramer, the young Russian artist who is to make her first Boston appearance when she plays at the Pop concert next Sunday evening.

Selma Kramer was born in Hamburg, Germany, of Russian parents, and studied there with Hans Hermanns. She began her career as concert artist at the age of fifteen, playing with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, and giving recitals in central Europe. Miss Kramer came to this country in 1935, making her début in Town Hall, New York, on November 6. The New York Herald Tribune then described her playing:

"A striking pianistic talent was disclosed by Selma Kramer, who made her début in Town Hall last night. Miss Kramer is a player endowed with a fiery temperament and the general style of her playing is not a little like that of Elly Ney when she first was heard here. . . . Her approach to her instrument is masculine in many respects. Her conceptions are broadly conceived, wholly free from sentimentality, and set forth with unflagging zeal. . . . The performance was an exhilarating one."

Stearns

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

(May 24—Playing the Paderevski Concerto,
and • May 31—the
MacDowell Concerto)

Jesús María SANROMÁ

an exclusive Steinway artist, whose recordings on VICTOR RED SEAL records have attracted the attention of critics and public alike, and are in great demand all over the country:

M-392 . . .	Liszt	Todentanz

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

SOARING MUSIC

by

Serge Koussevitzky

(Reprinted from the New York Times,
March 5, 1939)

The Old World is troubled and shaken. The fundamental principles of civilization have received a blow; not only culture and art but life itself has been put in question. Yet in our own New World there is hope, and if there ever was a time to speak of music in a hopeful voice it is now. It is, indeed, during the troubled periods in history that those who believe in the values and the inheritance of culture should stand in the front rank, battling to help an endangered humanity. . . .

Today the balance between culture and civilization seems considerably disturbed. The inconceivable growth of a mechanistic civilization has lowered the cultural values of contemporary musical art and, by a gradual and persistent flow of events, music has fallen into the clutches of a civilization to which it either voluntarily submits and is thus in subordination or with which it engages in conflict. These two tendencies determine the basic standing of music in contemporary life. On its higher plane music aspires to take possession of the real cultural place that belonged to it in the past. . . .

Music in America, whether of the past, the present or the future, depends for its furtherance on the development of three factors: a creative school of native composers, a full flowering of interpretative artists and organizations and a country-wide body of intelligent listeners. The musical history of the United States proves that it is the second element of this indivisible trio which developed first. Indeed, whatever the future may hold in America's musical life, nothing will surpass the incredible transformation from the primitive musical life of the early nineteenth century during the pioneering period, when music was confined to the home and the church, to the picture presented by present-day America.

It is a fact to which every American has a right to point with pride that, having begun by merely inviting the best of interpretative artists of the Old World to its shores, America has known how to weld its own performers into organizations which have a right to be compared with, and in certain fields surpass, similar organizations in Europe. The development of symphonic orchestras in this country, for instance, may be taken as a symbol of the advance in all the interpretative fields.

And it is not the quality of the orchestras alone which is remarkable, but also the breadth and variety of musical fare they present. These and similar organizations lay the groundwork upon which listeners are developed. For it must be remembered that without an educated and responsive music-loving public, there is no chance of having a musical culture. Today American audiences not only show their love and admiration of music but also a deep understanding of the necessity and importance of musical art in the progress of humanity.

ORIGIN OF THE POPS

The Pops owe their origin, more than a half century ago, to an attempt at the end of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's fourth season to establish something on a European model — concerts where the beer garden and the concert hall were combined. They were compared in the newspapers to the "Concert Gardens" which Theodore Thomas had made popular in New York's summer season. Boston's concerts were officially labelled the "Promenade" concerts, but they were popularly called the "Pops" from the very first. The title "Pops" was formally adopted in 1900 when, moving to Mechanics Hall for a season pending the completion of the then new Symphony Hall, they moved uptown from the old Music Hall where, like the winter concerts, they had always been given "Promenades" or "Pops," their hold upon the public fancy has persisted through all the intervening years. Strange to say, they have never been successfully imitated in any other American city.

It is said that glasses of beer stood on every table at the Pops of the eighties, and that the exuberance of conversation was scarcely abated while the waltzes, gallops, or marches then in vogue, were being played. There has been considerable variation in the points stressed from epoch to epoch, and under one conductor or another, such as Franz Kneisel, Timothée Adamowski, Agide Jacchia, Alfredo Casella. When prohibition came, there was naturally more serious attention to the programme side.

Arthur Fiedler is now entering his tenth season — a record length for a Pops conductorship. Through his decade, the Pops have grown in range of programme and appeal. The extent of the public each season leaves all precedent behind.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

May 24—Playing the Paderewski Concerto,
and • May 31—the

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Stearns

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

Paderewski Concerto,
and • May 31—the
MacDowell Concerto)

Jesús María SANROMÁ

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home — for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Stearns

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home — for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

(May 31 — Playing the
MacDowell Concerto.
June 4 — Playing the Gershwin Concerto)

Jesús María SANROMÁ

an exclusive Steinway artist, whose recordings on VICTOR RED SEAL records have attracted the attention of critics and public alike, and are in great demand all over the country:

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

POPS — By an Old Pops Fan

(From the Lowell Courier-Citizen, May 12, 1939)

I have been a Pops fan for something over 40 years, starting back in the glorious days of the old Music Hall in Hamilton Place, when the Pops were new and when high Boston society used to occupy a goodly part of the auditorium nightly. I suppose Symphony Hall is a lot better, as a concert hall; but I sigh inwardly for the ancient glories, which included a great and rather hideous organ at the back end of the hall. The organ, I believe, is now in Methuen where occasional concerts are played on it.

* * *

In those days we were less formal, more free and easy. Groups of us would get together at a table and chant aloud our desire for some special encore. That isn't done now—at least it never has been done when I have been there. I can't imagine a group of gay young sparks from Harvard sing-songing, "We—want—Whistling Rufus." I doubt that Arthur Fiedler would countenance the playing of "Whistling Rufus," or anything as trivial as that.

* * *

The waiting on tables now is all done by girls in attractive uniforms. In old Music Hall it was done by husky-voiced men who looked like prize-fighters. If you forgot to tip them you were usually bawled out. A favorite tippie was Scotch ale in heavy stone jugs. It was reputed to be potent. However, the Pops were never the scene of unseemly revelry. Just when old Music Hall was abandoned I don't remember, but I can recall being at many concerts there during the Spanish war. The shift must have come very soon after that.

* * *

I wonder how many thousand times in the past 45 years—or is it 47 or 48?—the Pops orchestra has played Handel's famous "Largo"? That overworked composition is on the bill many a night during the season, always has been, and probably always will be. Often as I have heard it, I haven't really got tired of it. Other prime favorites are the "1812" overture, a string of Strauss waltzes and many other waltzes by less prolific musicians—I remember how amused I was during prohibition to discover that one of these—wasn't it "Lustige Brueder?"—was by a man named Vollsted! Several times you are sure to be given a taste of "Scheherezade" where the "Ship Goes to Pieces against a Promontory Surmounted by a Bronze Warrior." Coyly but with good effect they are beginning to ring in some rather high-brow stuff—single movements from symphonies by Beethoven and Brahms, and so forth. To their amazement, people find they like them. Not all the great music is dull stuff. It's a good idea to give us something to offset the banal trash that jazz orchestras pour forth over the radio.

* * *

Of course it's still early and the season is late in getting settled, but I've always preferred the Pops on a good hot night, when there's an excuse for summoning the neat-handed waitress and demanding a lemonade—or something. Good music, good refreshments, a good cigar, and good company. What better entertainment is there, I ask you?

In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree

Swinging is done on a dance floor nowadays—but the idea is still the same. Only today when boy meets girl he meets a scrutinizing eye—an eye that recognizes correct cut and good tailoring. Stearns

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

June 4—Playing the

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Department of Music
Colby Junior College
New London, New Hampshire

May 31, 1939.

Mr. C. W. SPALDING,
Symphony Hall,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Mr. Spalding:

Everyone returned to Colby feeling POPS had been a tremendous success, even more than it was two years ago. From the Administration and the members of the Music Department may I extend our appreciation to the management and to Mr. Fiedler for helping to make a very enjoyable evening.

It was thrilling for us to realize that such an occasion means enough to members of the alumnæ that they would make a special trip to come from as far as Toronto, Canada, Albany, New York, New York City, and even to fly up from New Jersey. It would seem with this support and interest that the College would feel able to take the entire floor at another time.

Again, our thanks for a memorable Pops Concert.

Cordially,

FLORENCE LEACH.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: 313 out of a student enrollment of 320 came a distance of 120 miles for this concert. There were alumnæ bringing the total Colby contingency to 936.]

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Department of Music
Colby Junior College
New London, New Hampshire

May 31, 1939.

Mr. C. W. SPALDING,
Symphony Hall,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Mr. Spalding:

Everyone returned to Colby feeling POPS had been a tremendous success, even more than it was two years ago. From the Administration and the members of the Music Department may I extend our appreciation to the management and to Mr. Fiedler for helping to make a very enjoyable evening.

It was thrilling for us to realize that such an occasion means enough to members of the alumnæ that they would make a special trip to come from as far as Toronto, Canada, Albany, New York, New York City, and even to fly up from New Jersey. It would seem with this support and interest that the College would feel able to take the entire floor at another time.

Again, our thanks for a memorable Pops Concert.

Cordially,

FLORENCE LEACH.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: 313 out of a student enrollment of 320 came a distance of 120 miles for this concert. There were alumnæ bringing the total Colby contingency to 936.]

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Department of Music
Colby Junior College
New London, New Hampshire

May 31, 1939.

Mr. C. W. SPALDING,
Symphony Hall,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Mr. Spalding:

Everyone returned to Colby feeling POPS had been a tremendous success, even more than it was two years ago. From the Administration and the members of the Music Department may I extend our appreciation to the management and to Mr. Fiedler for helping to make a very enjoyable evening.

It was thrilling for us to realize that such an occasion means enough to members of the alumnæ that they would make a special trip to come from as far as Toronto, Canada, Albany, New York, New York City, and even to fly up from New Jersey. It would seem with this support and interest that the College would feel able to take the entire floor at another time.

Again, our thanks for a memorable Pops Concert.

Cordially,

FLORENCE LEACH.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: 313 out of a student enrollment of 320 came a distance of 120 miles for this concert. There were alumnæ bringing the total Colby contingency to 936.]

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Department of Music
Colby Junior College
New London, New Hampshire

May 31, 1939.

Mr. C. W. SPALDING,
Symphony Hall,
Boston, Massachusetts.

Dear Mr. Spalding:

Everyone returned to Colby feeling POPS had been a tremendous success, even more than it was two years ago. From the Administration and the members of the Music Department may I extend our appreciation to the management and to Mr. Fiedler for helping to make a very enjoyable evening.

It was thrilling for us to realize that such an occasion means enough to members of the alumnae that they would make a special trip to come from as far as Toronto, Canada, Albany, New York, New York City, and even to fly up from New Jersey. It would seem with this support and interest that the College would feel able to take the entire floor at another time.

Again, our thanks for a memorable Pops Concert.

Cordially,

FLORENCE LEACH.

[EDITOR'S NOTE: 313 out of a student enrollment of 320 came a distance of 120 miles for this concert. There were alumnae bringing the total Colby contingency to 936.]

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Songs of the old days

TA-RA-RA BOOM-DE-AY

A bright and stylish girl you see,
 Belle of good society;
 Not too strict, but rather free,
 Yet as right as right can be.
 Never forward, never bold,
 Not too shy, and not too cold;
 But the very thing, I'm told,
 That in your arms you'd like to fold.
 Ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay, ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay,
 Ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay, ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay,
 Ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay, ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay,
 Ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay, ta-ra-ra boom-de-ay

THE BOWERY

Oh, the night that I struck New York,
 I went out for a quiet walk;
 Folks that are on to the city say,
 Better by far had I taken Broadway.
 I was out to enjoy the sights,
 There was the Bowery ablaze with lights;
 I had one of the devil's own nights,
 And I'll never go there any more.
 The Bow'ry the Bow'ry,
 They say such things, and they do strange things on the Bow'ry, the Bow'ry.
 I'll never go there any more.

THE SIDEWALKS OF NEW YORK

East side, West side, all around the town,
 The tots sang "Ring-a-Rosie,
 London Bridge is falling down";
 Boys and girls together, me and Mamie
 O'Rourke,
 Tripped the light fantastic
 On the sidewalks of New York.

SWEET ROSIE O'GRADY

Sweet Rosie O'Grady, my dear little Rose,
 You're my steady lady, 'most everyone knows;
 And when we are married, how happy we'll be,
 For I love sweet Rosie O'Grady, and Rosie
 O'Grady loves me.

DAISY (On a bicycle built for two)

Daisy, Daisy, give me your answer true,
 I'm half crazy all for the love of you.
 It won't be a stylish marriage—
 I can't afford a carriage;
 But you'll look sweet upon the seat
 Of a bicycle built for two.

WHILE THE BAND PLAYED ON

Casey would waltz with a strawberry blond,
 While the band played on.
 He waltzed 'round the floor with the girl he adored.
 While the band played on.
 His head, it was loaded, nearly exploded;
 The poor girl, she shook with alarm.
 He ne'er left the girl with the strawberry curl,
 While the band played on.

AFTER THE BALL

After the ball was over,
 After the break of morn,
 After the dancers' leaving,
 After the stars are gone,
 Many a heart is aching,
 If you could read them all;
 Many the hopes that have vanished
 After the ball.

A HOT TIME IN THE OLD TOWN

When you hear dem bells go ding, ling, ling,
 All join 'round and sweetly you must sing;
 And when the verse am through, in the chorus all join in—
 There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight!

In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree

Swinging is done on a dance floor nowadays — but the idea is still the same. Only today when boy meets girl he meets a scrutinizing eye — an eye that recognizes correct cut and good tailoring. Style Street

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home . . . for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home . . . for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who needs no introduction to Boston's music lovers, is shown with Charles O'Connell, R C A musical director and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and who will be guest conductor of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra June 28. The car they are admiring is a Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe with white side-wall tires and new "fingertip automatic top control." Mr. O'Connell is an enthusiastic Lincoln-Zephyr owner.

● The man or woman who steps for the first time into a new Lincoln-Zephyr literally steps into a new world of motoring. This is the most modern car in the world. It is the only V-12 at its price, and the thriftiest "12" ever sold. Beneath its outward beauty is an exclusive bridge-truss body-and-frame unit providing exceptional roominess and luxury for passengers. Its brakes are hydraulic, and big but easy-acting. Wheelbase is 125 inches, springbase 136. The 6 Lincoln-Zephyr body types include 2 convertibles.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home — for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Overture to Pleasure...

and to thrift!

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who needs no introduction to Boston's music lovers, is shown with Charles O'Connell, R C A musical director and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and who will be guest conductor of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra June 28. The car they are admiring is a Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe with white side-wall tires and new "fingertip automatic top control." Mr. O'Connell is an enthusiastic Lincoln-Zephyr owner.

● The man or woman who steps for the first time into a new Lincoln-Zephyr literally steps into a new world of motoring. This is the most modern car in the world. It is the only V-12 at its price, and the thriftiest "12" ever sold. Beneath its outward beauty is an exclusive bridge-truss body-and-frame unit providing exceptional roominess and luxury for passengers. Its brakes are hydraulic, and big but easy-acting. Wheelbase is 125 inches, springbase 136. The 6 Lincoln-Zephyr body types include 2 convertibles.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Overture to Pleasure...

and to thrift!

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who needs no introduction to Boston's music lovers, is shown with Charles O'Connell, R. C. A musical director and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and who will be guest conductor of the Boston "Pop" Orchestra June 28. The car they are admiring is a Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe with white side-wall tires and new "fingertip automatic top control." Mr. O'Connell is an enthusiastic Lincoln-Zephyr owner.

● The man or woman who steps for the first time into a new Lincoln-Zephyr literally steps into a new world of motoring. This is the most modern car in the world. It is the only V-12 at its price, and the thriftiest "12" ever sold. Beneath its outward beauty is an exclusive bridge-truss body-and-frame unit providing exceptional roominess and luxury for passengers. Its brakes are hydraulic, and big but easy-acting. Wheelbase is 125 inches, springbase 136. The 6 Lincoln-Zephyr body types include 2 convertibles.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical
"greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes
Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Overture to Pleasure...

and to thrift!

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who needs no introduction to Boston's music lovers, is shown with Charles O'Connell, R C A musical director and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and who will be guest conductor of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra June 28. The car they are admiring is a Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe with white side-wall tires and new "fingertip automatic top control." Mr. O'Connell is an enthusiastic Lincoln-Zephyr owner.

● The man or woman who steps for the first time into a new Lincoln-Zephyr literally steps into a new world of motoring. This is the most modern car in the world. It is the only V-12 at its price, and the thriftiest "12" ever sold. Beneath its outward beauty is an exclusive bridge-truss body-and-frame unit providing exceptional roominess and luxury for passengers. Its brakes are hydraulic, and big but easy-acting. Wheelbase is 125 inches, springbase 136. The 6 Lincoln-Zephyr body types include 2 convertibles.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical
"greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves
with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes
Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the
home—for your home.

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

The "Pops"

Here in Boston, the "Pops" have begun;
A season of gayety and much fun.
We get together and make up tables —
Forgetting our gowns and sables;*
For an informal atmosphere here prevails,
And glamorous frocks and evening tails
Are all forgotten as we sit and smoke,
Talk, and listen to some joke —
Until our conductor, Arthur Fiedler,
Brings us the music of Brahms and Wagner;
Of Gershwin, Grainger and Paganini.
And we listen to tunes light and airy;
Familiar, varied. We hear Ravel,
Or listen to the "Overture Solennelle":
"Aida" and "Malaguena";
"The Song of India" and "Natoma";
A Largo and a Scherzo;
A Tango — a violin solo.
And as we listen, we eat and drink;
Then you can tell people's tastes, I think.
See those people sipping Sherry?
They like Bolzoni and Puccini.
And those enjoying Burgundy,
Prefer Verdi and Rossini.
Those in front, drinking coffee,
Are ardent admirers of Tchaikovsky;
And the lady delicately drinking Tea,
Likes to hear "The Flight of the Bumble Bee."
That man slowly spreading Camembert,
Perks right up under the "Marche Militaire."
She likes waltzes, make no mistake,
The one who is munching a Vienna Tea Cake.
Look over there! What good cheer —
As they hear Strauss and drink beer!
With my punch, I enjoy a Pavane,
And listen to the "Secret of Suzanne."
Ah, what bliss is this — what fun!
Here in Boston, the "Pops" have begun.

Overture to Pleasure...

and to thrift!

ARTHUR FIEDLER, who needs no introduction to Boston's music lovers, is shown with Charles O'Connell, R C A musical director and associate conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and who will be guest conductor of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra June 28. The car they are admiring is a Lincoln-Zephyr convertible coupe with white side-wall tires and new "fingertip automatic top control." Mr. O'Connell is an enthusiastic Lincoln-Zephyr owner.

● The man or woman who steps for the first time into a new Lincoln-Zephyr literally steps into a new world of motoring. This is the most modern car in the world. It is the only V-12 at its price, and the thriftiest "12" ever sold. Beneath its outward beauty is an exclusive bridge-truss body-and-frame unit providing exceptional roominess and luxury for passengers. Its brakes are hydraulic, and big but easy-acting. Wheelbase is 125 inches, springbase 136. The 6 Lincoln-Zephyr body types include 2 convertibles.

Most artists prefer STEINWAY!

It is not surprising that musical "greats" from Wagner to Rachmaninoff have identified themselves with Steinway. A standard of perfect craftsmanship makes Steinway the natural preference.

It is surprising that the Instrument of the Immortals should be styled and priced primarily for the home—for your home.

Repeatedly featured as soloist with the Pops is

June 11 Rhapsody in Blue
June 22 Rhapsody in Blue
June 23 Rhapsody in Blue
June 24 Grieg Concerto
June 28 Weber's Concert-

Jesus María SANROMÁ

an exclusive Steinway artist, whose recordings on VICTOR RED SEAL records have attracted the attention of critics and public alike, and are in great demand all over the country:

M-324 . . . MacDowell Concerto
M-392 . . . Liszt Todentanz
M-547 . . . Hindemith . . . Piano and Viola Sonata

Sailing Against the Wind...

A terrific headwind has swept across the sea of business for the past few years. Surviving business institutions have proved seaworthy under the most severe and adverse economic conditions that our country has ever known. With business still sailing against the wind, printed advertising has demonstrated the fact that it is a dependable, efficient, business-building power. At a time when no one can afford to try the unknown, we offer you the services of men whose judgment has been matured by years of close observation and successful activity in this field. Let us prove to you that the printed word, as we use it, can sail against the wind.

Music in the Air

The people who go down to the Charles on warm July nights to hear the music of the Esplanade concerts are not all the same that have boxes at the opera and season tickets to the Symphony. There are people at the Esplanade concerts who cannot afford the every-day luxury of radios, whose music at home is the roar of the "El" and the squalling of colicky babies.

This audience is a testimonial to Arthur Fiedler, creator and conductor of the concerts, as a judge of human nature as well as music. When he conceived the idea of giving free open-air summer concerts in Boston a decade ago the wise ones shook their heads. Band music might draw an audience in the open air. Jazz might appeal to the hoi polloi. But a symphony orchestra required a hall and a selected audience. Fiedler proved the experts were wrong.

Perhaps he had read about the Boston urchins who, a hundred years ago, used to follow the extraordinary Brigade Band beyond the city's bounds, like the children of Hamelin, and then plod wearily home with only their own dry whistling of Walsch's marches to cheer them. Perhaps he recalled how Boston mechanics and market men joined their untrained voices in the early concerts of the Handel and Haydn Society before it had attained sufficient reputation to draw more cultured recruits. Perhaps he thought it unreasonable that good music, which is classless in the European capitals and in other American cities, should be a Brahmin institution in Boston.

The important thing is that he persevered. He obtained funds, at first from a few wealthy sponsors, later from a large number of smaller contributors. He got the Metropolitan District Commission to erect a shell. He gathered an orchestra which included some of the best talent in the Boston Symphony. The public did the rest. For ten seasons now he has played for from five to twenty thousand people a night. People from the tenements slap mosquitoes by the Charles, just as their wealthy neighbors do, while the sun drops down and the lights blink on, and Mr. Fiedler's music weaves a community of spirit which would have done justice to the haleyon musicales at Brook Farm.

The Esplanade concerts will enter their eleventh season in a few weeks if sufficient funds can be raised to meet expenses. Friends have not failed in the past. We are confident they will not do so now.
